MEMORANDUM

DATE May 30, 2013

TO RVT Task Force
Kim Williams, RVT; Cheryl Waterhouse, DVM; Dave Johnson, RVT; and Oscar Chavez, DVM.

FROM Sue Geranen Executive Officer
Veterinary Medical Board

SUBJECT RVT Student Exemption

Background:

AB 1980 (Hayashi), Chapter 538, effective January 1, 2011, created a provision in law for RVT students in the clinical portion of their final year of study in a board-approved California veterinary technology program to perform the job tasks for registered veterinary technicians as a part of their educational experience including students both on and off campus acting under the supervision of a licensed veterinarian in good standing.

The bill also required the Board to adopt regulations defining the parameters of supervision required for the students who were to perform such tasks. The consensus of the RVT Committee and its recommendation to the Board at its last meeting in June 2011 was that the level of supervision should be "immediate" supervision meaning the supervision was physically present and the supervision was one on one.

There was also discussion regarding students in structured two year programs verses alternate route candidates and the RVT Committee recommended that the Board include in the regulations the parameters under which all RVT students could have experience actually performing the RVT job tasks at some time toward the end of their clinical training.

The RVT Task Force discussed changes to CCR sections 2034 and 2036.6 at their March 2013 meeting and proposed additional changes to the language.

Issue:

There are two issues before the committee at this meeting on this topic:

1. Defining the supervision under which RVT students are allowed to perform the restricted RVT job tasks;
2. Determining the parameters under which RVT students qualify to perform such tasks.

Action Requested:

Discuss and considering adopting parameters of supervision for RVT students performing the restricted job tasks and the parameters under which student qualify to perform such tasks.
